Chips4Tack is a company specialising in adding both visible and invisible ID to your saddles. This is achieved:

- 1) By installing a microchip into an inaccessible place in the saddle. A place where it is secure against attempted removal and importantly, will not be lost during re-flocking.
- 2) Next, we engrave a special number code onto the stirrup bar as a visual ID. Then add a country code so should your stolen saddle get taken abroad it will bear a UK identifier should it be discovered later.

Both the microchip number and the engraved code are registered, by the chip fitter, onto the Immobilise National Property Database. Immobilise is the Police's favoured database - and the only property database the police access from their patrol cars and radios. So if a van load of saddles is discovered down a shady lane at dead of night a quick look at the stirrup bars will alert the Police to search the database and within minutes the owner's details will flash up on their screen.

Chips4Tack is a part of The Pet Chip Company who, under their pet-detect banner, are one of the largest trainers of companion animal microchippers in the UK. They know what they are talking about and have put massive research into the Chips4Tack project, even teaming up with the well known and highly respected Master Saddler, Line Asser Hansen, who trains all the chip fitters.
